Hockey reigns in West again

By Paul Scheufele '80

While the rest of the Middlebury College students were spread across the country on vacation, the varsity hockey team has been on campus since Saturday, Dec. 29 doing what it does best—winning hockey games. The Panthers were undefeated with a 3-0-1 record before an 8-2 loss to Holy Cross (10-3-0) on Wednesday, Jan. 9, and they were ranked first in Division II West.

The team has been stricken early by injuries, losing P.J. Murphy '81 and Carl Erdman '81 for the remainder of the season. The team has also suffered from inactivity, having played the least amount of games in its division. The games earlier this week against UVM (Monday, Jan. 14) and Williams (Wednesday, Jan. 16), although the outcomes were undetermined at press time, were sure to be a challenge to the relatively inactive Panthers.

But the Panthers have yet to give up the challenge of defending last year's championship season. They have shut the doors to victory on all but one of their opponents, including two highly respected college teams, Salem State (8-3-0) and Army (10-3-1).

The goal-scoring of Mark Fernberg '80 (5-4-9) and the performances of fellow first-liners Bob King '80 (0-7-7) and Kevin Matson '80 (3-2-5) has been one of Middlebury's assets. The first line has accounted for ten more points than the second line of Roger Nicholas '80 (3-2-5), Murphy (1-1-2) and Dave Tenney (2-2-4). The second line totalled eleven points after the first four games. Behind Fernberg, King, Matson and Nicholas in the scoring sheet come Tenney and defenseman Chip Clark '82 (2-2-4) with four points each. Scoring has been balanced.

There has also been parity in the goal. Sophomore Mike McNamara has a 3.00 goals against average and has stopped 48 of 53 shots on goal. Barry McPherson '82 had stopped 45 shots and allowed three goals in two games for a 1.50 goals against average before the Holy Cross contest. McNamara had faced the tougher of the five opponents before the games earlier this week, namely Salem State and Army.

Middlebury trounced McGill University 6-1 on Thursday, Dec. 3 and travelled to Salem State on Friday, Dec. 5. The Panthers led 4-1 after two periods and went on to defeat Salem 5-3. Francis Lambert '82 scored the gamewinner with assists from Erdman '81 and Matt Weeden '83.

Salem's only other Division II loss has come at the hands of St. Anselm's. Salem's All-American goaltender, Jay Palladino, was at his best against neither St. Anselm's nor Middlebury, and for the second straight year he was out-played by McNamara in the Middlebury goal. However, Salem has won eight games, the most recent being a 5-2 victory over defending National Division II Champion Lowell State in the Teapot Tournamennt at Boston Garden on Monday, Jan. 7.

Middlebury's tie was against the only other Division II hockey team to defeat Lowell, a 3-3 game versus Army on Saturday, Dec 8. Army had previously beaten Lowell 3-0 and it had lost to Norwich 8-6. Similar to Salem State, Army has been hot enough on one night to defeat Lowell and cold enough on another to lose to Norwich. Army lost to Holy Cross 10-4 on Saturday, Jan. 5.

In the game between the Panthers and Army, Middlebury led 3-1 after two periods on goals by Nicholas, Matson and Fernberg, but a partial letdown and the losses of Murphy and Erdman stifled Middlebury. The game went into a scoreless overtime.

The toughest test of the season for the Panthers thus far came on Wednesday, Jan. 9 against Holy Cross, and the opening minutes looked impressive for Middlebury. Matson sent the Blue ahead 1-0 on a snap shot from 25 feet at 7:22 and Nicholas banged in a Clark rebound at 9:57 to make it 2-0. But that was all the scoring for the Panthers.

Holy Cross' Owen Dugan '83 poked in a loose puck in front of Middlebury goaltender McPherson at 14:35 and the Crusaders took advantage of the Panthers' sluggish play in front of their own net to record seven more unanswered goals. It was the most lopsided loss for Middlebury in two years. The Panthers led 2-1 after the first period, but the patched Middlebury line-up came undone in the final two periods.

Kevin Cyr '83 rocketted a shot past McPherson with only six seconds gone in the second period to tie the game 2-2. He collected the opening face-off at center ice and skated unmolested to the top of the face-off circle before drilling the puck past the stationary McPherson.

Tony Trase '81 had the chance to help Middlebury regain the lead on a scramble in front of Holy Cross goaltender Mark Young '81, but shot wide. Dugan converted a perfect cross-crease pass from Brian Harnett '82 to score the eventual game-winner at 14:23. Tom Pickett '83 added to the miserable second period by scoring with only ten seconds remaining in the period. His half-hearted shot trickled through the pads of McPherson.

Entering the third period down 4-2 and continually frustrated by missed open net opportunities and fine goaltending by Young, the Panthers tried to come back. Middlebury's attempts were thwarted, for the most part, by its own frustration. Nicholas, perhaps the team's most potent scorer, missed an open net chance at 7:42 and Tenney's ensuing backhand shot was gloved and smothered by Young. The third period was played with at least one player in the penalty box from 5:04 to 16:19. The Panthers had four players in the box during the 11- minute span and Holy Cross scored two powerplay goals, by John Powell '81 at 8:55 and Cyr again at 16:19. The game was not beyond reach until Cyr's goal made the score 6-2.

Matson's hustle on the forward line, Nicholas' continued good play despite the one missed chance, and junior Jim Davis' efforts to stifle onrushing Holy Cross attackers at the blue line were Panther brightspots. But even these efforts were not good enough to stop Holy Cross from salting the wound with two more goals in the final 2:41.

The Panthers have proven themselves to other Division II opponents early and the team has shaken any stigma tha last year's success might have imposed on it. A victory and a tie with two high-caliber teams and thorough thrashings of McGill and Hamilton College, both of which are mediocre at best, give Middlebury a solid base from which it can defend its crown. The balanced scoring and the emergence of the Fernberg—King—Matson line as a powerful scoring threat, combined with a defense which has allowed an average of just over two goals per game, has pushed Middlebury past its uncertain beginnings. However, the true indication of the team's ability to fair against successive high-quality opponents started on Jan. 9 against Holy Cross and ended temporarily with Williams yesterday.

Hoopsters win two, lose two

By Steve Riley '82

As the saying goes, be it ever so humble, there is no place like home.

And the Panther basketball team found that out last Saturday night, Jan. 12, as they began a four-game homestand with an 85-67 romp over winless Castleton State.

Coming off three long road trips with only one victory and a new offensive and defensive philosophy in the making, it was a struggling Middlebury squad which entered Memorial Fieldhouse.

And for the first 31 minutes an inspired Castleton team stayed right on the Panthers' heels with an awesome shooting display.

Deadlocked at 16 with 13:16 left in the first half, Bob Hamilton '81 hit a jumper and senior co-captain Kevin Kelleher scored five straight points, as the Panther press began to take its toll.

Soon after the full-court man-to-man press forced numerous Spartan errors, yet despite a late Castleton stall the Panthers led comfortably at intermission, 47-35.

With 12:16 left, Castleton cut the lead to 7 following a technical on Kelleher and stayed within six once again, at 57-51, on an off-balance effort by Mike Porrier.

However, Hamilton and Peter Murray '80 got hot from the outside to extend the Middlebury lead.

Hamilton hit Fain Hackney '83 with a nice pass to make it 77-60 with just 3:34 left, and Ted Virtue '81 found a streaking Tom Curtin '83 just 48 seconds later, and Middlebury had its largest lead of the evening at 81-60.

Hamilton led the 3-4 Panthers with 20 points, on a fine 10 for 15 effort from the floor. Kelleher added 17 and Murray 16. Porrier had 16 and Bob Van Valkenburgh 15 for Castleton, now 0-8.

Coach Russ Reilly expressed his pleasure about the game, although at times the play was still ragged.

"We expected them to play a slow-down game and they were forced into a more up-tempo game by the combination of our pressure and their early success. It was a fairly good team effort overall."

The Panthers did not find the same success in the previous night's game at R.P.I.

The homestanding Engineers moved out to a 29-22 lead in a slow-paced first half, but the Panthers tied it at 39 with 12 minutes left on a Hamilton to Paul Righi '82 feed.

Middlebury trailed by only three, 51-48, with 3:12 to go, but the hosts had just enough left to hold off the rally and won 60-52.

Last Wednesday, Jan. 9, the Panthers pulled off to an early lead, let Norwich come back, but finished strongly to emerge with a 92-80 win over the Cadets.

Cadet forward Randy Franklin scored 20 points in the first half and scored his 1,000th career point, but a fine run-and-gun show by Middlebury gave the Panthers a 49-37 lead at the half.

Cadet Stefan Mitchell's dunk with 8:00 left got Norwich back in the game, but the visitors were able to keep the margin between eight and thirteen points for the entire second half.

The previous Saturday, Jan. 5, the Panthers traveled to Connecticut and were blown out of the gym by Division I Yale University, 114-74.

The Bulldogs set a school scoring record in the process, after building a 63-29 lead at the half.

Though outclassed by the bigger, quicker, Yale team the Panthers turned in a respectable second-half as Hamilton fired in 18 points. Kelleher took game honors with 25.

Middlebury now faces a very tough three-game week, which began Tuesday as The Campus went to press, against St.Michael's, a Division II team.

Reilly called the Purple Knights "probably the strongest physical team we will play even though they are struggling within their own division."

Kelleher needed just 17 points going into that game to eclipse the career scoring record of 1,236 set by Kevin Cummings '76.

Tomorrow night at 7:00 Middlebury will host Worcester Tech, led by Mark Nestor and Randy Byrne.

The Engineers are currently tenth in New England Division III and defeated Middlebury 85-65 last year.

Saturday afternoon at 2:00 an exciting Colby team visits Memorial Fieldhouse.

Ranked fourth in New England, the Mules have lost the services of All-American forward Mike McGee, the nation's third leading scorer, and one whom Reilly called "probably the premier ofensive forward in New England."

Nevertheless, with four other starters returning the Mules will be tough.

Reilly is generally pleased with the overall development of his team, though the offensive and defensive execution "could be a little sharper."

He singled out Kelleher for his "competitiveness and desire" and cited Hamilton for "becoming a much more consistent leader."

In addition he noted, "We must rely on a team effort and it seems everyone has had a bad night sometime this season. We would like to play an up-tempo game but I still feel the zone defense we use fits our personnel best."

But if the Panthers can sweep the three games, they might be ranked in that New England poll.

And at least they will be playing at home, which, although it is a humbling place, is certainly an advantage.

Skiing:

Face-off at Whiteface doesn't settle rivalry

By Jim Taylor '82

The Middlebury men's alpine ski team opened its competitive season Saturday, Jan. 5 and Sunday, Jan. 6 at Whiteface Mountain in Lake Placid, New York. A field of 150 skiers competed in the races on the Olympic slalom hill. The event was the first test of strength between the alpine squads from Middlebury and the University of Vermont.

On Saturday, our Panthers dominated the top ten. Freshman John Morrissey took third place, closely followed by Jim Taylor '81 in fourth. Jack Wallace '82, Steve Utter '81, and Craig Antonides '81 rounded out Midd's top ten finishers by taking eighth, ninth and tenth respectively. Other Midd finishers were sophomores Mark Altmeyer in 13th and Connor O'Brien in 21st.

The race was won by UVM import Tom Melander of Sweden, a former national team member from that country. The race was marred by many falls and disqualifications due to the steep hill, difficult courses, and limited training.

The tables turned on Sunday as UVM swept the top three places while the Panthers succumbed to a treacherous second-run course. After the first run Morrissey and Taylor stood at second and fifth places respectively, but neither could negotiate the second run. The rest of the team fared similarly. UVM's All-American Chris Mikell won the event with teammate Melander finishing second.

ALthough this first confrontation between the Panthers and the Catamounts was a draw, there will be several more before the collegiate season opens on Saturday, Jan. 24 at the University of New Hampshire's Winter Carnival. The closeness of these two teams along with a fine Dartmouth team will probably lead to a tough battle for eastern alpine supremacy.

Women icers anticipate retaliatory win in Canton

By Jane Simon '82

On Wednesday, Jan. 16, the women's hockey team will travel to St. Lawrence for the third game of the season. This rematch should be exciting, as most players on the team are convinced of victory.

On Saturday, Jan. 12, the Panthers lost to the Cardinals by a score of 6-3. According to right wing Robin Tait '82, this loss was unfortunate because "we could have beaten them with no problem." Tait also said the team needs to be more aggressive on forechecking and backchecking and to take more shots on net.

Middlebury goals were scored in the second and third periods by first line center Anna Geblein '80 and by Tait and third line center Lori Woodworth '80.

Prior to playing St. Lawrence, the team traveled to Dartmouth on Thursday, Jan. 10 to open its season. Although the final score was 3-0 for Dartmouth, in general the team played very well. All of the goals were scored in the first period, while in the second period the Blue's performance equalled that of the Big Green.

The next home game will be on Saturday, Jan. 19, at 2:00 p.m., as the Panthers take on the Ephwomen of Williams in what should be a close contest.

Women's basketball slow at start

By John Allen '83

The women's varsity basketball team lost two close games, to Williams (78-66) on Wednesday, Jan. 9 and to Norwich (72-69) on Saturday, Jan. 12, before picking up its first win against Plattsburgh State on Monday, Jan. 14, by the score of 77-54.

In the opening match-up against Williams, the Panthers were slow to get started and allowed the Ephwomen to get a 14-1 lead, mainly due to Williams' Monice Grady, a quick, high-scoring guard. After a Midd time-out, the team bounced back with Ty Kennedy '81 hitting from the inside. The Ephwomen's height and precise outside shooting kept the Panthers behind, but by the end of the half they had regained their composure and cut Williams' lead to 37-35.

In the second half, the Panthers came off the bench with a full court press and finally took the lead 40-37. However, the women lost their momentum in a series of turnovers and fouls, and Williams managed to score 18 points in a row. Once the Panthers began to catch up there was not enough time remaining to make their drive successful.

The scorers were more balanced in this game with Ty Kennedy '81 (25 pts.) and Nancy Gaden '83 (17 pts.) outstanding in double digit scoring. Other scorers were Deb Shelton '82 (8), Lib Bloomfield '83 (8), Marty Taylor '81 (6) and Julie Hunt '81 (2).

In the Middlebury—Norwich contest, the Cadets' height proved to be a major factor in both rebounding and blocking Middlebury's shots. Once again, the opposition jumped out to an early lead, but when the Panthers got going, they played very good basketball. Gaden accounted for many of the points in the first half, along with Kennedy and her substitute, Wendy Webster '83, who sparkled for the few moments she played before injuring her knee. She had to be replaced at half time when the Panthers were down by 14.

The Panthers had their work to cut out for them, and much of this work was performed by Gaden, due to her ability to both steal the ball and drive through the middle for close shots. The Norwich lead was cut to 69-65 and the excitement built, but again a series of mistakes and fouls in the finale allowed Norwich to keep their lead and win this close (72-69) basketball game. Gaden was the main scorer with an awesome 44 total points. Other scorers were Shelton (8), Kennedy (7), Bloomfield (4), Webster (4) and Taylor (2).

In the Plattsburgh game last Monday, Middlebury dominated from the beginning with numerous pickoffs and break-aways, mainly by Gaden. With the score 36-27 at half time and a comfortable 11 point lead established for Middlebury, the Panthers in the second half continued to outclass the Plattsburgh team.

By effectively using the full court press, the Panthers disrupted the Plattsburgh offense. As Gaden's breakaways and excellent outside shooting worked in cooperation with Kennedy's steals on Plattsburgh throw-ins and Taylor's spunky defensive playing, the Panthers built up a 27-point lead. This situation allowed Coach Missy Hopkinson to take out her high scoring player, Gaden, (who had played every minute of every game heretofore), and substitute Martha Marshall '83. The team then coasted on to victory by the score of 77-54.

The team's record now stands at 1-2. The Panthers will have the chance to improve it on Friday, Jan. 18 at Castleton.

College nordic program expanding

By Kris Mix '80

Virtually every student at Middlebury is aware of the downhill skiing facilities available at the College Snow Bowl in Ripton, and most know of the "Red" Kelly ski touring trail around the golf course here on campus. Yet lack of publication has made the existence of excellent nordic facilities at Bread Loaf and the recent expansion of the college's cross-country skiing facilities on campus practically unknown among the student body. Despite the discouraging weather conditions, Winter Term is still the best time to spread the news.

Ward Mann, a 1978 graduate of Middlebury, is in his second year as the college's Nordic Program Director. In cooperation with David Larson, a UVM graduate, he teaches cross-country ski lessons to all levels of skiers throughout the week at Bread Loaf. His staff includes students Steve Ahmann '80, Tom Dillon '80, Ian Douglas '80 and Mike Stripp '80, who teach nordic skiing techniques on the golf course trail during the week and help at Bread Loaf on the weekends.

As Nordic Director, however, Mann is required to do more than teach. He organizes and helps to promote several races which take place during the winter both at Bread Loaf and on the "Red" Kelly trail.

"Bread Loaf is the nordic equivalent of what the Snow Bowl offers up here," Mann explained. "It's a major touring center on par with other top courses in the east."

The facilities at Bread Loaf include 25 kilometers of "well-groomed and well-maintained track," according to Mann. In addition, Bread Loaf offers 15 kilometers of trails which are not packed with machinery. In other words, "you can just ski off into the woods," Mann said. The trails are ten to fifteen feet wide, and Mann reported that "once you're on the trail it's hard to get lost."

For skiers who do not own equipment, 55 sets of rental skis are available for use at Bread Loaf. A newly-built rental shop in the Alumni Conference Center offers additional rental equipment at a discount of $1.50 to students. The shop will be open evenings from 5:00 to 10:00 p.m., and rental rates for the public are $3.50 per set of boots, skis and poles. The general public is charged a fee of $1.00 to ski the "Red" Kelly trail, and students may ski it without charge.

Mann also said that a series of Monday night races, open to both the public and Middlebury students, has been organized and is slated to begin as soon as Mother Nature complies. The series will include four races, each of which will begin at 7:30 p.m. on the designated Monday evenings. Women will ski the 3.5-kilometer trail once, and in two of the four races the men will ski twice around. Participants in each race can have their scores tallied at the completion of the series, but skiers who want to enter only one or two of the races are welcome.

A schedule of competitions has also been arranged for the Bread Loaf course, beginning on Sunday, Jan. 20 (weather permitting). A Dannon series race for classified competitiors only will take place that day, and some of the nation's top cross-country skiers should participate.

On Sunday, Jan. 27, a 6-kilometer race open to students and the public will be held at Bread Loaf. An entry fee of a dollar or two (as yet undecided) will be required, and the race will begin with a mass start and end with a barbeque for participants and spectators who provide their own food. Mann called this "a fun race," adding that it should be "a good time."

On Saturday, Feb. 2, Bread Loaf will be the starting point of the Hennessy-Cognac Marathon, which is the premier race in a national series of nordic ski marathons. The 60-kilometer event will cover terrain from Bread Loaf to Otter Valley Union High School. It is open to everyone who is willing to attempt to complete the course, and should provide excellent competition for even the best skiers.

Later in February, Bread Loaf will be the site of the Vermont Girls' High School Championships and a Bill Koch league race designed to encourage young people (ages 6 to 13) in nordic skiing. Middlebury's Winter Carnival, scheduled for Feb. 28 through March 2 this year, will bring some of the best collegiate skiers in the country to Bread Loaf. The women's National Nordic Championships, to be held on the Bread Loaf course March 5 through 8, will provide competition among the finest women competitors in the United States.

None of this can happen, of course, without snow, but Mann is optimistic about the chances of getting some. "Our feeling is that since there is no snow now we'll have it later in the year," he commented. "We'll still have winter, but it may be a month later (than usual)." Mann was, however, candid about present conditions, saying "We're really hurting up here."

Yet once the snow falls, it should be a great season for nordic enthusiasts.
